PREFACE.

The Souvenir of 1896 represents a Legislature that was called to deal with more important questions than usual, and that had unusual experiences to meet. Never before in the memory of this generation, has a whole state been called upon to mourn for its chief executive, removed by death from his high office. The lamented Greenhalge, called away while in the midst of the work to which he was giving his best thoughts and noblest endeavors, was mourned sincerely by the whole state because he has been in the best sense the Governor of the whole state. The great question of better transportation facilities, which culminated in the Southern Union passenger station bill; and the Pipe Line bill, by which it was proposed to give the people of the state cheaper gas for fuel and illumination, were bills which, of themselves, would have justified the claim for a great public work accomplished. This was the Legislature also which sent to the people for judgment the resolve for biennial elections of members of the state government; and it also passed a bill fixing for the next ten years the lines for councillor and senatorial districts, and allotted the number of representatives to each county for the same period. It abolished the days of grace on notes; appropriated $450,000 for finishing and furnishing parts of the new State House; and $375,000 for the "preservation" of the "Bulfinch front" of the old State House. It sent no committee on a "junketing" trip outside the state. And many other notable things it did, but space forbids their enumeration here. The following pages show you the portraits, give their biographical sketches, and show the autographs of the men in Senate, House and Executive Council, who helped do this great work; as well as the members of the National Legislature that represent the old Bay State in either branch.

THE OLD ELM, BOSTON COMMON.

(The following inscriptions on the tablets adjoining the present young and thrifty elm briefly state the main facts of interest):

"THE OLD ELM destroyed by a gale Feb. 15, 1876. This elm planted A.D. 1879."

"THE OLD ELM.—This tree has been standing here for an unknown period. It is believed to have existed before the settlement of Boston, being fully grown in 1722; exhibited marks of old age in 1792, and was nearly destroyed by a storm in 1832. Protected by an enclosure in 1854 J. V. C. SMITH, Mayor."

DORIC HALL.

This hall has seen varied gatherings, but none of greater interest than that of April 17, 1861. On that day, the first volunteer company of the whole country, during the late War of the Rebellion, assembled here, chose its officers, received overcoats from the government and in an hour and a half from the time of assembling was on its way to the front. The story, in more detail, is as follows. In Cambridge, in 1860, had been formed a company of "Wide Awakes" to help elect President Lincoln. Hon. J. M. S. Williams, congressman from that district, promised them that if they would keep up their organization they could go to Washington to see Lincoln inaugurated. But the United States government forbade the assembling of such bodies at the national capital. During the dark days of February, 1861, several of the company agreed to volunteer if they were needed, and, on the 14th of February, several of them signed an agreement to that effect. First on the list was the name of John Kinnear, now assistant door-keeper of the House. In the first week in March, he, with a few others, visited the State House and personally tendered their services to Governor Andrew. He advised them that there was no immediate need of their services and that they return to Cambridge, whence he would summon them if necessary. Then came the news of the breaking out of rebellion. They at once visited the State House, finding the Governor and Council in session. Governor Andrew told them to return to Cambridge and that they would receive orders in an hour. They returned and the orders speedily reached them. Then, again, they hastened to the State House, many of their members leaving their work and throwing their tools into the street. Reaching the State House, they assembled in Doric Hall, ninety-seven of them. In a small adjoining room they chose officers, electing James Prentice Richardson, now of Texas, as captain. They first went to the Old Colony station, but were soon ordered to the "S. R. Spaulding," where they embarked for Fortress Monroe. They were first assigned to the Fifth regiment, but were soon transferred to the Third, becoming Company C. This was, without doubt, the first volunteer company of the late war. It is a matter of history that this prompt, loyal and general response of this company, in contrast with the scattering returns from more pretentious organizations, did much to encourage the State authorities and "the great war Governor."

In this hall lay, in state, the body of Charles Sumner, Sunday, March 15, 1874, where it was viewed by a multitude as vast as time would allow.

In this hall gathered the "Army of the Unemployed," February 20, 1894, whence they were removed by detachments of the district and Boston police, but without violence. They had just been addressed on the Capitol steps by Governor Greenhalge.

This view is taken from the main entrance. In the distance are the cannon commemorative of the battles of Lexington and Concord, the battle flags of the Rebellion and, in the midst of all, the statue of Washington.

THE STATE HOUSE EXTENSION.

BRIGHAM & STOFFORD, Architects.---(Since March, 1892, Mr. Brigham has been sole architect.)
 Corner-stone laid, Dec. 21, 1889, by Governor Oliver Ames. First occupied by the Legislature of 1895. The portion directly underneath the dome is the "Bulfinch Front", which the Legislature of 1896 voted to remodel and preserve in its original condition as near as possible, at an expense of $375,000. All the remainder of the edifice is included in the new extension.

THE SENATE CHAMBER.

The musket on the left bears this inscription:—"The first Firearm captured in the War for Independence." The musket on the right is thus inscribed:—"This Firearm was used by Capt. John Parker at the Battle of Lexington, April 19, 1775. The drum, sword of an infantry officer, Hessian helmet and musket are trophies of the battle of Bennington, as the document framed below testifies, as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

SIR :

Boston, December 5, 1777.

The General Assembly of this State take the earliest opportunity to acknowledge the receipt of your acceptable present — the tokens of victory gained at the memorable battle of Bennington. The events of that day strongly mark the bravery of the men, who, unskilled in war, forced from their impetuosity a chosen number of veteran troops of boasted Britons; as well as the address and valor of the General who directed their movements and led them on to conquest. This signal exploit opened the way to a rapid succession of advantages most important to America. These trophies shall be safely deposited in the archives of the State, and there remind posterity of the irresistible power of the GOD of Armies, and the honors due to the memory of the brave. Still attended with like Success, may you long enjoy the rewards of your grateful Country.

NEAR VIEW OF SPEAKERS AND CLERKS DESKS AND REPORTERS' GALLERY IN THE HALL OF THE OLD HOUSE.

FANEUIL HALL, DOCK SQUARE.

Built in 1733; dedicated March 14, and completed the same month, on the site of an earlier one, built in 1742, and burned on January 13, 1791. James Ows made the dedicatory oration. Enlarged in 1805 to its present proportions. The grasshopper vane is an imitation of the pinnacle of the Royal Exchange in London, and was used on the first hall. The upper hall is the armory of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company. Faneuil Hall is also known as "The Cradle of Liberty," because here are held by common consent the 1113 meetings in the interest of efforts to aid humanity.

THE OLD STATE HOUSE.

Built in 1743, on site of burned town hall, at the head of State Street, Boston.

In the foreground occurred the Boston Massacre of March 5, 1770. Been used as State House, City Hall, and Post Office. British troops quartered here, 1768, and General Gage held council of war here before battle of Bunker Hill. Declaration of Independence read from balcony in view; from other end Washington reviewed procession in 1783. Here State Constitution planned and ratified. William Lloyd Garrison took refuge here from mob, October, 1835, it being then used for City Hall.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

BRIEF SKETCHES OF THE LIVES OF THE MEN WHO, IN STATE AND NATIONAL GOVERNMENT HELPED SHAPE LEGISLATION IN 1896.

THE GOVERNOR.

FREDERIC THOMAS GREENHALGE, Republican, of Lowell, is a native of England, born in Clitheroe, a parliamentary borough in the county of Lancaster, July 19, 1842. His education begun in Clitheroe, was continued in the Lowell public schools, and finished at Harvard College. Upon graduation from the high school, where he ranked first in his class, he received the first Carney medal ever given. He entered Harvard in 1859, and afterward became editor of Harvard Magazine. In Oct., 1863, joined Union army; connected with commissary department at Newbern, N. C. While engaged in this service, in April, 1864, he was seized with malarial fever, and after several weeks of sickness was sent home. Upon his recovery he resumed his legal studies, and in 1865 was admitted to the Middlesex bar. In 1874 he was made a special justice of the police court of Lowell, and served ten years. In 1888 he was made city solicitor. His public life began with service in the common council in 1868 and 1869. From 1871 to 1873 he was a member of the school board; in 1880 and 1881 mayor of the city; in 1885 a representative of Lowell in the lower house of the Legislature; and in 1889-90 a member of the Fifty-first Congress representing the Eighth Massachusetts district. At Washington he ranked with the leaders in the New England delegation, as a ready debater, and was frequently heard on the floor of the House. In 1890 he was renominated by the Republicans of his district, but, after a hot canvass, lost the election by about four hundred and fifty votes. He was delegate to the national Republican convention in 1884, and in 1890 was chairman of the Republican state convention. The autumn campaign of 1893 ended with his election to the governorship as the successor of William E. Russell, and he was again elected in 1894 and 1895. He is a member of a number of societies and clubs, is president of the Humane Society, past president of the Unitarian and the History clubs, and president of the People's club in Lowell, from 1885-93, and he also belongs to several clubs in Boston. He has been a trustee of the City Institution for Savings of Lowell since 1866, and is now president of the institution. He is also a member of the Yoric and Highland clubs of Lowell and of the University Algonquin and Athletic clubs of Boston.

Gov. Greenhalge died in office, Thursday, March 5, at 12.30 A. M. For particulars of the action of the Legislature on his death see "Notes of the Session" at the close of this book.

Vote of State: E. Gerry Brown, People's Party, 7786; Frederic T. Greenhalge, Republican, 186,280; Edward Kendall, Prohibition, 9160; Moritz E. Ruther, Socialist Labor, 3249; George Fred. Williams, Democrat, 121, 599.

THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR.

HIS HONOR ROGER WOLCOTT, Republican, of Boston, was born in that city July 13, 1847, being a lineal descendant of Oliver Wolcott, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He graduated from Harvard University in the class of 1870, and was class orator. THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL.

DISTRICT No. 1.

HON. NATHANIEL F. RYDER, Republican, of Middleboro, was born in Middleboro, October 15, 1845, attended the public schools and graduated from Pierce Academy. At eighteen he entered upon work which has been his principal business all his life. He was employed by W. C. Hunneman in their varnish establishment, and at twenty he was a salesman with a big salary for Stimson, Babcock & Livermore. Here he declined a partnership, but subsequently became a member of the firm of Odiorne & Ryder. They were burned out in the great Boston fire. After the great loss by this fire Mr. Ryder began life anew, as it were. The firm of Burbank, Ryder & Damon was formed and exists today, with but a single change, under the name of Burbank & Ryder, doing the largest business of any in the trade in New England, and having factories in Charlestown and Middleboro and stores in Boston and Chicago. The Boston store is at 140 A Milk street. They occupy a most honorable position in the commercial world. Mr. Ryder cast his first vote for General Grant for president, and has always been a true and loyal Republican. He has never held public office but has been a generous promoter of the cause for years with his means and has been active in the political clubs and committees, being at present a leading member of the Republican state committee from the Second Plymouth district, and chairman of the First district councillor committee. He is treasurer of the Plymouth County Club, and a member of the State Republican, Home Market, Middles-x, Algonquin and Norfolk clubs. He has acquired a leading position by association with the prominent party leaders of the state and outside and was a warm personal friend of Governor Greenhalge. He is also a Mason of high degree. He was nominated by acclamation and was elected by the largest vote ever given in the district. On committees on finance, harbors and public lands, military and naval affairs, railroads, nominations.

Private Secretary.—HENRY ANDREW THOMAS was born in South Weymouth, Mass., July 29, 1856; educated in its public schools, and graduated at the high school with honors at seventeen, when he entered the Boston post-office as a clerk under Gen. W. L. Burt. By hard work and careful attention to his duties he was advanced through the various stages until 1889, when he was appointed by Postmaster-General Wanamaker superintendent of mails at the Boston post-office, in which position he remained until September, 1893. In early part of 1889, he was offered the position of superintendent of foreign mails at Washington, but declined in order to keep up his old associations in Massachusetts. During the Harrison administration he was a prominent candidate for postmastership of Boston, and was the choice of the post-office department at Washington as well as of a number of Congressmen and the Republican members of the Massachusetts Legislature. During the state campaign of 1893 he was an earnest advocate of the candidacy of Hon. F. T. Greenhalge for the governorship, and took a very active part in the preliminary canvass and in the campaign afterwards, which resulted in the election of Gov. Greenhalge. The first act of the Governor after his inauguration was the appointment of Mr. Thomas as his private secretary. For two successive years he was reappointed to this position; and, on the death of Gov. Greenhalge, he was continued in the same position by Acting Governor Wolcott. He has proven himself admirably fitted for this position, and his courteous manner and great tact have won for him a multitude of friends all over the state. In the public affairs of his native town he has always taken an active part, and has been instrumental in the formation of different organizations of a literary and social character, and is at present a member of the school board of Weymouth. On Memorial Day and other public occasions his voice has often been heard upon the platform, and his services as a public speaker are always in demand.

NOTES OF THE SESSION.

[The purpose of the "Notes" is to include some specially prominent features of the session, or some matters of interest that would not appear in the journals of either branch.]

The Legislature was prorogued at 12.20, p. m., Wednesday, June 10.

The House Democrats chose Mr. Quirk of Boston as chairman of the caucus committee of the party.

In the Senate, March 4, resolutions upon the death of ex-Gov. George D. Robinson were adopted, and in the House a few days later.

After the committees were appointed, Senator Sanger of Suffolk resigned from three of the four to which he had been appointed, accepting only a position on the judiciary.

In the House the vote on passing the biennial elections resolves to engrossment was 175 to 50 with five pairs; in the Senate the vote was 24 yea, eight nay, four paired and four not on record.

On Monday, Feb. 24, Gov. Greenhalge sent to the Legislature a special message announcing the death of ex-Gov. Robinson and an order was adopted for a joint committee to attend the funeral.

On March 2, the House adopted a resolution of sympathy, offered by Mr. Clarke of Wellesley, to Gov. Greenhalge in his serious illness, and they were adopted in the Senate on the following day.

The only contested seat in the House was decided by giving the seat, that of the 22d Suffolk, to Mr. W. H. Morgan, who was decided by the majority of the committee, to have one majority.

The Republican members had a dinner at the United States hotel, Monday, May 25, the invited guests being Acting-Governor Wolcott, and Chairman George H. Lyman of the Republican state central committee.

The committee on woman suffrage was abolished, and the matters pertaining to that subject were divided between the committees on election laws, and constitutional amendments. The House committee on leave of absence was also abolished.

Senator Southard of Bristol offered resolutions in support of the Monroe doctrine in the Senate, Wednesday, Jan. 1, but they were not finally acted upon until April 29, when they were adopted in the modified form in which they had passed the House after much delay.

In April Hon. Joseph B. Foraker of Ohio, Hon. John M. Thurston of Nebraska and Gen. James Longstreet of Georgia, visited the Senate and were presented to the members, after which they briefly addressed the members. The guests were then given a similar reception in the House.

An investigation was had of the charge by Senator Sanger that Mr. John Shepard attempted to influence him improperly on the bill relating to examination of assessment life insurance companies. The committee reported that the evidence showed a misunderstanding between the gentlemen.

The House Republicans nominated Representative Sleeper of Winthrop for clerk in place of E. A. McLaughlin, who had been clerk for 13 years, by a vote of 89 to 76. Mr. McLaughlin was opposed simply on the ground that he was a Democrat. In the whole House Mr. Sleeper had 122 votes to 108 for Mr. McLaughlin.

The House, on the recommendation of the Speaker, voted to practically consolidate the committees on finance and taxation. The Senate declined to take similar action, so the House members on the new committees on ways and means were also placed on taxation, to the great detriment of the efficiency of their service.

After the close of the session on Friday, Feb. 28, the hall of the House was given up to a delegation of Lowell citizens, headed by Mayor Courtney, who came to present to the state a fine marble bust of Gov. Greenhalge. The presentation speech was made by the mayor, and Lieut. Gov. Wolcott accepted the gift on behalf of the state.

The House had the unusual spectacle of having a witness before an investigating committee brought before it to compel him to answer certain questions. It was in the Norfolk county case, and the witness was Henry N. Bates, of Hyde Park. The result was that he agreed to answer the questions privately to the committee, they to make them public if the public good demanded.

The Senate of 1896 contained 33 Republicans and seven Democrats. The House contained 182 Republicans and 58 Democrats. Senator Neill of Bristol was the senior member in that branch, and Representative St. John of Haverhill, who was a member in 1866 from Worcester, was the senior member of the House. Of the 240 members of the House, 166 were born in Massachusetts, and 17 in Maine and 10 in Vermont and 12 in New Hampshire. There were 35 lawyers, 11 farmers, 12 merchants, 10 clerks, 8 journalists, 7 physicians; and not over five from any other single vocation.

Not for 71 years has the state been called to mourn the death of its chief magistrate. But, after an illness of several days, Gov. Greenhalge died at his home in Lowell, March 5, at 12.30 A. M. His Honor the Lieutenant Governor communicated this fact to the Legislature by a special message. The Senate, on motion of Mr. Pearson of Lowell (Middlesex) referred the message to a joint special committee, with the President and Messrs. Pearson, Galloupe of Essex and Roe of Worcester as members from that branch, to report what action should be taken by the General Court. In the House, on motion of Mr. Hayes of Lowell, concurrent action was taken, and the Speaker and Messrs. Meyer of Cambridge, Hayes of Lowell, Slade of Fall River, George of Haverhill, Utley of Brookline, Tolman of Pittsfield, and Moriarty of Worcester were joined on the part of the House. The committee recommended a public memorial service in Mechanics' Hall, with a memorial address by Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge. Resolutions upon his death were adopted in each branch also, and all other customary honors paid.
